BACKGROUND At the beginning of May, We Energies filed a proposal at the Public Service Commission to impose a significant surcharge on customers who own solar power systems. This new surcharge could slow down solar development in the state and is widely seen as an effort to throttle customer use of clean energy. We Energies introduced this proposal despite publicly acknowledging a need to expand solar energy in its territory. We Energies proposed a similar surcharge back in 2014, which was ultimately struck down by the courts.

The Wisconsin Solar Coalition is a growing alliance of nonprofits, businesses and individuals. More information can be found at www.wisolarcoalition.org.
